

Jesus' Parables in Chronological Order

Parable #22 — Luke 17:7-10 — Master and Servant

⁷ “Suppose one of you had a servant plowing or looking after the sheep. Would he say to the servant when he comes in from the field, ‘Come along now and sit down to eat’? ⁸ Would he not rather say, ‘Prepare my supper, get yourself ready and wait on me while I eat and drink; after that you may eat and drink’? ⁹ Would he thank the servant because he did what he was told to do? ¹⁰ So you also, when you have done everything you were told to do, should say, ‘We are unworthy servants; we have only done our duty.’ ”

Parable #23 — Matthew 18:23-34 — Unmerciful Servant

²³ “Therefore, the kingdom of heaven is like a king who wanted to settle accounts with his servants. ²⁴ As he began the settlement, a man who owed him ten thousand talents was brought to him. ²⁵ Since he was not able to pay, the master ordered that he and his wife and his children and all that he had be sold to repay the debt.

²⁶ “The servant fell on his knees before him. ‘Be patient with me,’ he begged, ‘and I will pay back everything.’ ²⁷ The servant’s master took pity on him, canceled the debt and let him go.

²⁸ “But when that servant went out, he found one of his fellow servants who owed him a hundred denarii. He grabbed him and began to choke him. ‘Pay back what you owe me!’ he demanded.

²⁹ “His fellow servant fell to his knees and begged him, ‘Be patient with me, and I will pay you back.’

³⁰ “But he refused. Instead, he went off and had the man thrown into prison until he could pay the debt. ³¹ When the other servants saw what had happened, they were greatly distressed and went and told their master everything that had happened.

³² “Then the master called the servant in. ‘You wicked servant,’ he said, ‘I canceled all that debt of yours because you begged me to. ³³ Shouldn’t you have had mercy on your fellow servant just as I had on you?’ ³⁴ In anger his master turned him over to the jailers to be tortured, until he should pay back all he owed.

Parable #22 — Luke 17:7-10 — Master and Servant

1. The original Greek word for the man working for his master is doulos. Do you know what that means?
2. Was it fair for the master to expect his servant would prepare his meal after laboring in the fields all day?
3. Has society shifted on obeying authority and doing ones duty? Has God?
4. Should the master be expected to thank his servant for doing what he was told (or ordered or commanded) to do, for doing his duty? Should we expect thanks from God for obeying him and doing what he tells us to do? Doesn't our piety earn us some special treatment?

Parable #23 — Matthew 18:23-34 — Unmerciful Servant

1. Jesus told the parable of the unmerciful (unforgiving) servant right after telling Peter he must forgive someone seventy-seven (or seventy times seven) times. How likely are we to forgive someone many times for a similar offense?
2. Why is an unforgiving spirit so deadly?
3. What is the only supplication (request) in the Lord's prayer that has a "catch" to it (that requires something of us)? (Matthew 6:12-15, Mark 11:25-26)
4. In today's terms, roughly how much did the first servant owe the king? How much did the second servant owe the first?
5. In what ways has God shown mercy in forgiving your sins?
6. If God is so willing to forgive us, why are we often unwilling to forgive others? Why is there such an attraction to revenge movies like Death Wish, Straw Dogs, Payback, and Point Blank?
7. Is it really possible to "forgive and forget?" How is it possible to forget the wrongs that others have done to us?
8. What happened to the servant who was unforgiving? What is the parallel meaning for us today?

Parable #22 — Luke 17:7-10 — Master and Servant — Leader's Notes

1. Many Bibles translate the Greek doulos as “servant,” but the word used in this passage describes a slave, probably the only slave of a small farmer, a slave who not only works in the field, but also performs household chores. To Jews in the First Century Roman empire, slavery was a fact of life. The average person didn't own slaves, but many villages would have one or more wealthy people who owned slaves. In those days, slaves did not just have servile duties. Some might be tutors, physicians, companions, household managers, sales agents, and administrators. But the slave Jesus describes in this brief parable, probably the only slave in this household, got mostly hard labor—plowing, looking after livestock, as well as cooking and household chores. His was a pretty hard existence.

2. The point here is that, fair or not, the slave was expected to work in the fields and fix the food. That was his duty. I have a contractor friend who on occasion demands that his crews work into the wee hours of the morning to get an office ready for a client. That's part of the job; it comes with the territory. And though my friend's workers don't especially like it, they do it because it is required. People in our culture work two or three jobs because they have to. Is it fair? No. But it's required by the responsibilities they have.

3. Yes. Here's an example. As recently as the 60's, the Girl Scout Pledge read, “On my honor, I will try to do my duty to God and my country, to help other people at all times, and to obey the Girl Scout law.” But times have changed, and the words “duty” and “obey” have been changed. Now Girl Scouts recite, “On my honor, I will try: to serve God* and my country, to help people at all times, and to live by the Girl Scout Law.”

No, the meaning hasn't changed that much, but it is softer. When we drop the ideas of “duty” and “obedience” from our relationship with God, however, we miss one of the essential components of true discipleship. To be real disciples we must be obedient to God's word and do our duty as followers of Jesus in a fallen world.

* The Girl Scouts of the USA also add that, “it is okay to replace the word ‘God’ with whatever word your spiritual beliefs dictate.”

4. No. Don't load this poor servant down with your 20th century baggage. That isn't the way he thinks in the 1st century. He understands that he is doing his duty. That's all. He doesn't deserve a reward for doing it, but he knows he'll be punished for neglecting or shirking his duty. To be true disciples we must dispense with an attitude of “entitlement” and instead see ourselves as “unworthy slaves.”

Parable #23 — Matthew 18:23-34 — Unmerciful Servant

3. Matthew 6:12-15 - ¹² and forgive us our sins, as we have forgiven those who sin against us. ¹³ And don't let us yield to temptation, but rescue us from the evil one.

¹⁴ "If you forgive those who sin against you, your heavenly Father will forgive you. ¹⁵ But if you refuse to forgive others, your Father will not forgive your sins.

Mark 11:25 - ²⁵ But when you are praying, first forgive anyone you are holding a grudge against, so that your Father in heaven will forgive your sins, too. (Some manuscripts add verse 26), But if you refuse to forgive, your Father in heaven will not forgive your sins. (Verses above from New Living Translation, NLT)

4. A talent was a monetary unit worth about twenty years' wages for a laborer, so today it would be worth about $1 million.. A denarius was a day's wage for a laborer, today about $200.
